Head first java review reddit

Hi, Trying to teach myself Java and looking for a book simple to understand even for a complete programming beginner. Head First Java seems to be highly rated, but its last edition came out in 2005. Is that a problem? I'm currently going through "Learning Programming with Java for Dummies", but I'm over 100 pages in and barely know anything. I don't know whether the rest of the book will be as slow paced and sparse or not, but I feel like I need another book. Any suggestions appreciated! Page 2 Posted by u/[deleted] 7 years ago 15 comments I'm trying to learn to program I don't have any experience yet. I was looking for books and decided on Head first for Java. It looked like a perfect place to start learning. But right in the very beginning of the book it says that they assume you already have some programming experience. Has anyone read this book? Think it would be okay for a complete beginner? I already learned how to do the hello world with Java but that was super easy. Would anyone recommend a better book to learn the foundations of programming? Page 2 23 comments Hey Reddit! This is my first post on Reddit ever :) I went to a bookstore today, so I could buy Head First Java and finally learn this damn thing. But as I was proceeding to checkout, a random guy came out of the blue and said I should get the Deitel one instead. As I know nothing about the topic, I decided that the best solution would be to ask this amazing subreddit. Keep in mind I know pretty much nothing about programming, except that a couple of years ago I learned Pascal. So I'm pretty sure I need a beginner's book. Here's the link to the two books: Deitel and Head First EDIT (update): Ended up going back to the same bookstore and buying Head First Java. But thank you all for your replies, got some good tips. :) Hey guys I'm a beginner in Java, I have experience using Python but it's not really my thing... my goal is to make Android apps. The thing is I always find it easier to learn from books, and everybody keeps recommending Head First Java as my first Java book. BUT Head First Java is pretty bad so far, for example for someone that only knows Python, Head First doesn't explain things like you have to import Scanner to make an input, and then all of a sudden it gives you examples of how to make lists but it doesn't explain that there are multiple kinds of lists and how to import them. I'm looking for a COMPLETE BEGINNER Java book. I'm currently making the mooc course but I'd like a book too
